Washington, D.C. 20276*

Dear Friend:

As the Administrator of the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration and on behalf of the United States Government, I am pleased to invite you to participate in the celebration of our nation's Bicentennial in a unique way.

At the direction of the Congress of the United States, the National Bicentennial Medal is now available to you through July 31, 1976, from the United States Mint.

This special commemorative has been struck under authority granted by Public Law 92-228 and is the only official National Bicentennial Medal. It honors the significant events of the year 1776 and recognizes the achievements of the men and women who established our nation. The United States Mint has struck this medal in gold, sterling silver, gold-plated bronze and bronze.

This is a one-time-only offering. The medal is more than a keepsake of this historic commemoration and may become a treasured family heirloom. Collectors will prize it. And, you can understand its value as both a personal and business gift.

The accompanying folder gives you more detailed information about the National Bicentennial Medal. To reserve your personal selection, use the enclosed order form and convenient postage paid envelope.

The official National Bicentennial Medal symbolizes our historic past and our proud heritage. It is my privilege to offer it to you. Take advantage of this opportunity to reserve yours immediately.

"In the Spirit of '76,"

John W. Warner
Administrator

The National Bicentennial Medal

The most dramatic medal collection in American history.

The National Bicentennial Medal

Available Only Through July 31, 1976

In America's two-hundred year history, this is the only gold medal specifically authorized by the Congress of the United States for public sale. Also struck in sterling silver, gold-plated bronze and bronze.

In 1973 the Congress of the United States directed, under Public Law 92-228: "A national medal shall be struck commemorating the year 1776 and its significance to American independence."

The design for the medal, with its symbols of liberty and freedom, The Statue of Liberty and The Great Seal, took shape under the creative and talented hands of Frank Gasparro, Chief Engraver, United States Mint. Final approval of its design came jointly from the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration and the Secretary of Treasury on behalf of the United States Government.

The National Bicentennial Medal is symbolic of the proud heritage which we honor on our nation's 200th birthday.

As the only gold medal ever authorized specifically by the Congress of the United States for public sale, the National Bicentennial Medal takes its place in our history as a first. It offers an unprecedented opportunity to possess a prestigious reminder of the basic documents upon which this country was founded and the national spirit which guided our people through 200 years.

Historic gold medal and its companion pieces

$5 bronze to the historic $4,000 gold.

In order that every American may participate in this historic occasion, the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration offers the National Bicentennial Medal in seven selections

...from the beautiful

The three-inch gold medal is the most expensive medal ever struck by the United States Mint. Its price: $4,000. It will be produced to personal order only, made of .900 fine gold from the reserves held by the United States Treasury. Each will be serially numbered to assure you of a one-of-a-kind original. The more promptly you order, the lower your number will be. Your gold medal will be sent to you in a handsome presentation case made of native American cherry wood, lined in velvet. The 1-5/16-inch gold medal, made of the same .900 fine gold as the larger medal, costs $400 and is also boxed in cherry wood lined with velvet. The .906-inch gold medal, of United States Treasury gold, comes to you in a presentation case of velvet-lined birch wood. Its price: $100. All other medals are presented in a velvet-lined leather-textured case.

Orders for the National Bicentennial Medal must be received by July 31, 1976.

Invest in the spirit of America

The proceeds derived from the sale of the National Bicentennial Medal will be used to help fund Bicentennial programs on a national, state and community level. When you purchase a medal, you do more than acquire a family heirloom, you invest in the spirit of America and help lay the cornerstone for our third century as a nation.

There's only one official National Bicentennial Medal as authorized by the Congress of the United States. Choose those which you desire from the dramatic collection shown here. Or invest in them all.

3-inch gold: $4,000

Struck to order only. Made of .900 fine gold. Individually numbered. Comes in presentation case of native American cherry wood with velvet lining.

1-1/2-inch silver: $25

Contains same fine silver as larger size. Leather-textured velvet lined case. Distinctive present for all occasions.

1-1/2-inch gold-plated bronze: $15

Leather-textured case with velvet lining. Impressive way to start a young collector off to a fine beginning. Or add it to your own collection.

1-5/16-inch gold: $400

Made of the same .900 fine gold as the three-inch medal, and also boxed in cherry wood and velvet lined.

.906-inch gold: $100

Slightly smaller than a quarter. In presentation case of American birch wood, lined with velvet. Easily adapted to making attractive, unusual pieces of jewelry.

3-inch silver: $150

Made of sterling silver and presented in a leather-textured case. A keepsake gift to be treasured for generations.

1-1/2-inch bronze: $5

Presented in a leather-textured velvet lined case. Very popular as an enduring reminder of our great heritage.

A legacy of American history on both sides of the Medal

Obverse Side

The obverse of the National Bicentennial Medal presents the Statue of Liberty, surrounded by a ring of fifty stars, one for each state, and the words "Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness," the inalienable rights, so proclaimed by the Declaration of Independence.

The Statue of Liberty, originally called "Liberty Enlightening the World," was a gift from the people of France to the people of the United States. Presented to our country in Paris on July 4, 1884, it "commemorates the alliance of the two nations in achieving the independence of the United States of America, and attests to their abiding friendship."

The 225-ton copper-sheathed, steel-framed statue was designed by the French sculptor Frederick Auguste Bartholdi. In her right hand, Liberty holds a torch as a beacon to all mankind, and in her left hand, illuminated by the torch, is a tablet with the date July 4, 1776. At her feet is a broken shackle symbolizing liberation from tyranny.

Reverse Side

The reverse of the National Bicentennial Medal includes the American bald eagle as it appears in the Great Seal of the United States, and the opening words of the Constitution, "We, the people."

The creation of the Great Seal was the first order of business undertaken by the Continental Congress after the signing of the Declaration of Independence. The original committee was composed of Benjamin Franklin, John Adams and Thomas Jefferson. (Franklin favored the turkey over the eagle. Jefferson proposed the phrase, "E Pluribus Unum"—out of many, one.)

After much deliberation by a number of committees, the present seal was adopted by Congress on June 20, 1782. Impressed on certain documents by direction of its custodian, the Secretary of State, the seal authenticates the President's signature on various acts of our government. It represents the ideas and idealism of the stirring days of our War of Independence.

Most of the details of the design are symbolic: union of the States through Congress; the qualities of purity, valor, vigilance, perseverance, and justice; the dedication to peace; the capacity for self-defense—all find expression in the device of the seal.

The official symbol of the American Revolution Bicentennial is represented on the medal, adjacent to both talons of the eagle.

The National Bicentennial Medal, in any of its sizes, makes a proud and welcome gift to family, friends and business associates. Take advantage of this opportunity to reserve yours now. Use the enclosed order form or write ARBA, P.O. Box 1976, San Francisco, California 94101.

INTERNATIONAL CALENDAR OF BICENTENNIAL EVENTS

More than 70 countries are participating in our Nation's Bicentennial. Participation in the commemoration of our 200th anniversary has taken many forms, including the contribution of a Sound and Light Spectacle at Mount Vernon by the French Government, the loan by the British of one of the four original copies of the Magna Carta of 1215, which will be on display at the United States Capitol in 1976, a planetarium-projector at the new Air and Space Museum from the West German Government, endowment of chairs or fellowships at a number of universities, countless visiting performing arts groups, and other programs which will be of interest to Americans and visitors to the United States from countries abroad.

The enclosed calendar includes those events which Embassies in Washington, D.C., have announced as part of their major Bicentennial programs. As a compilation, it does not pretend to be all inclusive but is a fair representation of the different kinds of events which are taking place in 1976.

The project and event numbers included in some cases refer to events listed in the ARBA's Comprehensive Calendar of Events which can provide more detailed information.

The International Calendar is being mailed to you to help answer many of the questions we have been getting on the subject. Individuals can obtain a copy by contacting Betty Kirby, International Division, ARBA, 2401 E Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20276, (202) 382-2263.

Emerging from these meetings, in addition to an exchange of ideas, is the fact that our Federal agencies are getting more and more involved in the Bicentennial. I am particularly pleased with the manner in which agency participation is being spread throughout the nation.

Attached is a tentative agenda for the meeting. Your thoughts on additional topics will be most welcome.

Jack, attached is the agenda for today's Federal Agency Bicentennial Task Force meeting.

- In addition to his report on visitation, Dick Hite will briefly cover the settlement of the street vendor matter which was resolved last week.
- The Small Business Administration, the National Science Foundation and the Smithsonian will brief on their activities for the Bicentennial. Smithsonian has just opened their Centennial Exhibition, a recreation of a part of the 1876 Philadelphia Exposition.
- The ARBA Licensees Association is a group representing those companies authorized by ARBA to turn out Bicentennial items for which they pay a license fee to ARBA. These funds, in turn, become a part of the non-appropriated funds which ARBA distributes.

The Science and Technology Exposition at Cape Canaveral is scheduled to open on May 29th. You might want to call on Herb Rowe for a short update report.

The Federal Agency Bicentennial Task Force will next meet on Friday, June 4, 1976 from 3:30 to 5:00 PM in the Roosevelt Room of the White House.

At this meeting, we will have the last of our agency briefings after which I will welcome any thoughts you may have. While July 4th may bring a peak to Bicentennial activities, indications we are receiving show that there will be a continuation of commemorative programs throughout the year at least.

Attached is a tentative agenda for the meeting.

Because of space limitations, it is requested that only Task Force principals attend. However, those who are briefing may bring along staff assistants. Please call 456-2800 to advise of your intention to attend.

FROM: TED MARRS TM

Jack, here is the final agenda for the Federal Agency Bicentennial Task Force Meeting on Friday, June 4, 1976 at 3:30 PM.

You may want to cover in general the President's July 4th weekend plans.

The Canaveral project opened unofficially on May 29th and so Herb Rowe should be able to give some indication of public reaction to the Exposition.

Since it's possible that ARBA does not have a complete run-down on Federal Agency Bicentennial activities over the July 4th weekend, you may want to surface the matter with a request that each representative come back by Monday with further information.

We should get some indication of Federal Agency plans for beyond July 4th period.
